Dear Miss Khan,

I am writing to you because the whole year 6 just got to test a new delightful hand held device, ActivExpression. It really is a shocker, as you no longer have to raise your hand to answer questions, or say your own answer out loud. Unfortunately it's for a price, and we need you to buy them.

Now, I know it's a hard time trying to buy playground equipment for us, but don't you agree that we need to make sure children who don't try getting easy grades all because of children shouting out answers? And people who try get knowledge, and we all know knowledge is power!

But that's not all! You can see the whole schools answers even during tests! Now you can see who the smart one during SAT's is!. But as we learn with this new device, we can play with the device! And learn at the same time! With a game called rave racer (which costs extra). The aim of the game is to get your car to finish the laps ASAP! But on the way you have to answer some questions first. How speed your car is all depends on how quick you get the right answer correct! So if someone didn't get there answer correct, they will be as slow as a turtle!

ActivExpression also comes with questions like: science, maths and English. I think learning just got a whole lot better! Plus I looked at opinions with children in my class, and Joshua said that "ActivExpression is the best thing on the planet!" and I 100% agree with him, its fun and Educational at the same time!

I hope you think about this after you finished reading this letter (witch is now) and we all hope (in 6b) that you buy it!

Thank you for you time Miss, I greatly appreciate it.

Yours sincerely, Narada Busia
